To the Editor of the United States' Gazette.

"WASHINGTON, Jan. 13, 1810.

DEAR SIR,

"Have you seen the Spirit of '76, of yesterday? The letter of Philo-laos directed to the President, contains most important truths, and ought carefully to be perused by every friend to his country. It is said to have been written by Mr. R. , member of Congress. I think it carries in itself sufficient proofs of the fact. It cannot be denied, that the councils of our nation are managed by a secret band. The family compact, unless put down in season, will bring on ruin and inevitable destruction to our country. It is the people whom they are sacrificing to their ambitious projects. They pipe and dance, but the people "must pay the piper." This French influence will not do. It is time the people should look into the state of their affairs; and a sad picture they will find; little short of national bankruptcy. The mad schemes of embargo and non-intercourse, have brought us to the brink of destruction: and all to gratify sister France and support the FAMILY COMPACT. This is the true cause that turned Jackson adrift, and is going on very fast to involve us in a war with Great Britain! I think it will not be long before the people, with one voice will say, "dn the family compact." It is high time the people knew what becomes of their money. One hundred thousand dollars to Sam. Smith, for bills on Purviance & Co. which were well known at the time of it would not produce the money. These pretended friends of the people take great liberties. In short, the government has fallen into the hands of those who are too weak, or too wicked, to manage the affairs of the people; and unless they [the people] will "correct the procedure," we shall certainly be ruined. The rule for gagging the members, seems to be laid aside for the present; and it is apprehended they will not dare bring it forward again. It was a deep laid plan to deprive the people of the knowledge of what was going on in Congress.

"The people's money might then be squandered to whatever uses the ruling party pleased, and the nation not be the wiser; and this effected by calling the previous question! An old sinner from Pennsylvania had even the audacity to avow as a reason for adopting this nefarious rule, that an appropriation bill might be "stopped in its passage, if the minority chose to discuss it!"—in other words [and plain language] that a grant of the people's money might be prevented by a discussion of the minority, except they could be gagged, by calling the previous question!!! In this way it would be in the power of the canting, whining, servile crew, to rob the people of their rights. But if ever they call it up again, they may expect to have some truths told them, which will not be stifled by the reporter, as they have been; and altho' the majority have the power of carrying the vote, it will be a dear bought victory."

[Cætera desunt.]

[FROM THE SPIRIT OF '76.]

To the President of the United States.

NO. I.

SIR,

THE writer who now presumes to address you will not affect to conceal from you, that he is not among the number of your political admirers. He honestly opposed your late election to the best of his poor ability, for reasons that have not been withheld from yourself, nor from the world. He would again do it, if the case were again to occur—but candor compels him to confess—[blessed are they that expect nothing!]—that he has found more than he had anticipated to approve in your presidential conduct—and he is incapable under any circumstances of treating the chief magistrate of his country with intentional disrespect. With this declaration, he, himself, yet firmly solicits your attention for a very few minutes. He is aware of the importance of your time and he will not consume any part of it in apologizing for the intrusion. Through you he addresses himself to the considerate and reflecting portion of the good people of the U. States. The only interest which the bulk of the people of any country can have in the administration of its affairs, is, that they should be managed well. It is of no consequence to them (however important to the leaders, for whose emolument they have been divided into two gangs, and driven, like so many West India negroes, under the lash of a prostituted press)—that the sedition law, and the provisional army, and the eight per cent. loans, and the Quasi-war with France, were the works of federalists; or, that the non-importation act; the denial of the writ of habeas corpus, by military force, and its proposed suspension by one branch of the legislature; the abrogation, by bill, of the constitution, as it respects treason; the embroiling of our affairs abroad; the embargo, that loathsome SIN, and the rickety non-intercourse law, have been the spurious offspring of (self-called) republicans. The people may indeed acquire one benefit from the lesson before them. It is that, here, as well as in the unhappy country from which we are descended; with all the clamor and inveteracy of hate between whig and tory—whigs, in power, become tories, and tories, out of power, whigs; and to watch them accordingly. It is poor comfort to the people of England to be told that the septennial act, which sapped their constitution at the base, was passed by the leading whigs of their day, whose attachment to the house of Hanover, and their places; whose zeal for the protestant religion, and for pensions, drove the nation into rebellion, and shook the government to its foundations. And if a politician propose to repeal the constitutional definition of treason, substituting in its place the devices and desires of his own wicked heart and crude understanding; or to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, to palliate its defiance by the military at the point of the bayonet; or to enforce an embargo, [or any thing else] by prostrating every chartered, as well as natural right of the citizen; or to screen Sam. Chase, or Burr, or Wilkinson, or John Smith, of Ohio, from well earned punishment—I care not to which faction he belongs; he is no politician for me.

But I am wandering from my purpose—which is to request your serious attention, and that of every sober mind in the state, not so much to any thing which I am able to offer to your consideration, as to the "annual report of the secretary of the treasury," made to congress on the 17th of Dec. This memorable and mournful state paper merits, and must receive, the deepest attention. It is conclusive as to the policy which has been pursued for the last three years. Hitherto, the contest has been carried on by charges, mixed with some proof on the one side; and peremptory denials on the other; and the good people have not known which party to believe: more especially when all their knowledge of the charges and proofs against administration has been derived from so impartial a source as the ministerial prints.—There is now, however, a standard to which all may have access; from which opposition will not, and administration cannot appeal. In this sinking political barometer we discern a revenue dwindling, in three short years, from sixteen millions to ten; from ten to SIX AND AN HALF!—an enormous surplus of preceding years; [before folly had snatched the helm of government] exhausted; a redundant revenue dried up; and before any thing like preparation even for defence is made, a loan of four millions certainly (perhaps more) becomes necessary! This is not the gloomy picture of a factious federalist, or of a discontented minority man, accused (for accusation is ever ready) "of private grief;" it is the fairest view which one of the cabinet—(himself a man of transcendant abilities)—can present of the state of the nation, brought to this point by the measures and the counsels of his patron, his colleagues, and himself.

Will not Great Britain and France tremble at our powers of annoyance, when they see this report? When they are told by the chancellor of the American exchequer, the greatest financier now living, "that the expences of government (exclusively of the payments on account of the principal of the debt) have exceeded the actual receipts into the treasury, by a sum of near one million three hundred thousand dollars!—that three millions are necessary to make up the deficit; and that in the event of war, loans, reimbursable by instalments after the return of peace, must constitute the principal resource for defraying its expences!" May we not expect a special mission to make atonement for the offence done by the "insolent Mr. Jackson" upon the delicate nerves of the sensitive Mr. Smith? Will not the British ministry (for there is no degree of folly however undignified or puerile that may not be fairly imputed to them) to "rather to the "[illegible]" thundered in the senate, by one who resembles Sempronius in every thing but his address and abilities, against the tyrant nation that denies to the great emperor "the liberty of the seas" which he is so ambitious "to conquer" by the sword, and his ex-brother of America to obtain for him, by libation and prayer?—The measures which have led to our present disastrous and disgraceful condition, were the measures of that man. Espouse them, and they become your own. You identify yourself with him, who with a full and perfect knowledge that he was about to surrender into your hands a beggared exchequer, and that the deception could not be kept up twelve months after his retreat to the mountain, gravely came forward in his last official address to Congress and to the nation, affecting to be embarrassed with "the surplusses of our revenue," and pretending to tax the ingenuity of the legislature, not with raising supplies, which he well knew to be then wanting, but in devising ways and means to rid the country of the burthen of a redundant treasury;—A man, "who died (politically) with a  in his mouth!" It is on record—It is deposited in the archives of his country! It was a deception, too, tending, with the ignorant multitude of his worshippers, to throw the odium of the present defalcation from his shoulders upon your own—to make you responsible for the sudden change effected by his absence from the helm of government—for the vanishing of the fairy treasures—the rich succession which he handed over to you; his friend.

On recurring to the journals of the house of representatives, I find "that so much of that message as related to the disposition of the surplusses of our revenue in the improvement of roads, canals, rivers and education, was referred to a select committee." Why a report has not been made on this subject, is, I suppose, like every other failure of the four years, chargeable to the misconduct of Mr. Randolph, its chairmain. But wherefore that chief of political sinners should have been selected for this important task, or for the delicate inquiry at a preceding session, recommended by the president (along with a book, extracted from the Enquirer, and reating on the colossal basis of its editor's veracity) "whether the defect on Burr's trial was in the evidence, the law, or the application of the law?" [illegible] might puzzle the ingenuity of Mr. Speaker Varnum fairly to account. But I must leave the ex-president and the great delinquent, Randolph; one of whom already stands, and the other must soon stand displayed in his true character; to attend to weighty matters.

I must again ask your attention to the secretary of the treasury's report. By it, we perceive that the expences of our formidable navy and redoubtable army [including the Indian department] have for the year past exceeded six millions of dollars! and that unless these branches of expenditure are immediately reduced to less than one half of that amount, the nation [even supposing no encrease of our present expences] must incur an annual deficit of more than three millions of dollars! or in other words, must enter on a career leading to unavoidable bankruptcy. I beseech you, sir, to compare for a moment the cost of these institutions with the public benefit derived from them;* or with the protection which might have been afforded to the country, at one tenth part of the expence, by placing arms in the hands of every able bodied man in the community.

Our gallant gun-boats sail out of port, and then, sail back again. Our warlike officers pocket their pay and emoluments, and peaceably devote themselves to wordy warfare: to the editing of ministerial journals in the service of his Gallic and Italian majesty; or, after taking a trip to Paris at the public expense, to fit themselves with regimentals of the most fashionable cut, employ their leisure in carrying messages, marshalling ladies on the parade of an assembly room, and caning members of congress. The republican doctrine (out of power) was "No public money without an equivalent for service." The text is to be found in the political bible. Where shall we look for the commentary? Shall we find it in an army receiving full pay, rations and clothing, with empty regiments?

NOTE.

* By the partial report of the committee of investigation made at the last session of congress, it appears that since the administration of Mr. Jefferson commenced, the army has cost the nation dollars 2,276,176, and the navy dollars 13,[illegible],522. The profusion of the last three years squandered about three fourths (I write from memory and cannot pretend to be exact as to the proportions) of this sum. Cui Bono?

[illegible] where similar causes have produced in the accounts of the commander in chief or the hero so dexterously drawn by his friend general Smith on Degen, Purviance and Co. through the instrumentality of his brother, our late minister of marine, and present secretary of the foreign and home department of state! But let me not be guilty of injustice. These were not acts of your administration.

I have said that we are unprepared even for defence. This may seem to imply a contradiction of what you have asserted in your late message to congress, and will perhaps be deemed by the outrageous republicans of the new school (by far the most servile courtiers we have) a breach of the engagement with which I set out. It is, however, surely not unpardonable in an American citizen to claim, in an address of this sort, speaking in reference to a presidential message, the same degree of freedom which was exercised on a memorable occasion, by a British subject, on the floor of the house of commons, in relation to a speech from the throne!

Sir John Barnard, as able and upright a patriot as ever sat in a legislative body declared in his place, in the year 1737, "that the assertions hazarded in royal speeches or messages, were not to be implicitly relied upon; for that the crown might assert and in fact had asserted, in consequence of hasty, or treacherous information, what afterwards proved not to be true. Parliament had (he said) been assured, by a solemn speech from the throne, that an alliance had been entered into between the emperor and Spain, in conformity to the secret articles of which, Gibraltar was to have been wrested from us, and the pretender placed by force on the throne of Great-Britain.—Considering the situation and circumstances of the contracting powers at that period, this intelligence appeared to many, at the time, romantic and incredible; and it was now known to be false, though it was then represented as highly disrespectful to the crown, so much as to doubt it."

It is remarkable enough, that this declaration of sir John Barnard refers to that speech of the king of England made in the preceding reign, which gave such just umbrage to the court of Vienna, that M. de Palm, the imperial minister at London, was ordered by the emperor to present a remonstrance to the British court, charging the king "with calumnious misrepresentations, and with hazarding assertions void of all foundation;" and stating "that his imperial majesty was struck with the utmost astonishment, that the king of Great Britain could suffer himself to be prevailed upon to declare from the royal throne, to that most renowned nation, as certain and undoubted facts, things absolutely void of all foundation." With this memorial was transmitted from Vienna, a letter from chancellor Zinzendorf (the imperial prime minister) to count Palm, expressly commanding him in the name of his imperial majesty, after presenting the memorial to the king of G. Britain, to publish it together with the letter for the information of the British nation.—The chancellor Zinzendorf affirms in this letter "that it is easy to see that the speech was made for no other purpose but to excite the nation to an open war with the emperor and Spain, and to make the parliament approve the precipitate and burthensome measures, which the government has taken for private ends too well known."

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

MONDAY, JANUARY 29.

At an election held at the Court House in the town of Alexandria, on the 25th of January, for Directors to manage the affairs of the Domestic Manufacture Company of Alexandria, for one year, the following gentlemen were duly elected:

John Longden,
James Carson,
George Deneale,
Joseph Dean,
Hugh Smith,
Archibald M'Clean,
John M'Kinney.

And a meeting of the said Directors, agreeably to the articles of association, John M'Kinney was chosen chairman, and Anthony C. Cazenove was chosen a director, to supply a vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Hugh Smith.

Remarking on the president's message the Aurora says—

"It is to be regretted that every member of administration does not adhere to the province which the law has assigned him. The president considers these topics as peculiarly within the scope of legislative function; the secretary of the treasury was so anxious to dabble in affairs of state, that he was indiscreet enough to enter into a conference beyond the threshold of his duty, and encroaching both upon the president's and secretary of state's functions, in conversations with a foreign minister; by no means calculated in the tenor or form to his credit or the public advantage. In like manner, without referring to the scandalous if not predetermined character of the financial report, to the tail of it is tacked in the same manner, a suggestion of alternatives wholly beyond his province; and it belonged exclusively to the president to make. This man's conduct in the ridiculous assumption which he has made about Pennsylvania being hostile to the general government is no longer entitled to forbearance; we know of no persons in this commonwealth hostile to the general government but Simon Snyder and his privy counsellors, who are well worthy of their correspondent during the presidential canvas."

If the sentiments of the president, respecting England and France, may be fairly gathered from his late message, we must conclude that, while he is sufficiently indignant against the former, he cherished a remarkable suavity of disposition towards the latter. Napoleon has violated a solemn treaty, which England has done.—— He has violated a solemn treaty by enacting his Berlin and Milan decrees; by capturing, sinking and burning our vessels upon the high seas; by imprisoning our citizens; by multiplying vexatious regulations against our commerce, in the ports under his controul; by the seizure of our vessels in Holland, and by condemning American property, to the amount of millions upon millions of dollars. These depredations and robberies have continued a very long time, and have gone on from bad to worse. The French are still capturing, sinking, and burning; are still imprisoning American citizens. And what does our president say to this? Here it is all; you can read it at a single breath—"With France, the other belligerent power, whose trespasses on our commercial rights have long been the subject of our just remonstrances, the posture of our relations does not correspond with the measures taken on the part of the United States to effect their favorable change." The veriest Frenchman upon earth could not in any conescience find fault with this sweet-toned period; it is mildness, it is tameness itself.

(Con. Courant.)

Extract of a letter, dated Buenos-Ayres, S. A.

"We arrived here on the 29th September, and found two American ships belonging to Baltimore—the Thomas Wilson, Gardner, and Bashaw, Petakin; by the latter you will receive this. The former vessel, on her outward bound passage to the Brazils, fell in with an armed Turkish vessels cruising off the Cape de Verds. She hailed the Thomas Wilson; and while captain Gardner was preparing his boat to go on board, fired a whole broadside into the Thomas Wilson. The Turk continued firing for several hours, until the ship got out of his reach by superior sailing. Captain G. was so near him at one time, that he perceived men, women and children, with their Turkish dress on. The pirate appeared to be pierced for 16 or 20 guns, and full of men. I advise you to caution our shipmasters and owners, as this Turkish vessel is cruising in the track of our outward bound East India ships.

"Vessels arriving here do labor under considerable difficulty in procuring cargoes; after many petitions, lading licences are generally given. The best informed people here, however, calculate that this port will be open to all trade shortly. No news from the interior.

"You will find below the price current of all the articles which Americans purchase, jerk beef excepted. I can give you no certain information respecting American produce, (as we are here in ballast) only that is in great demand, and if it can be smuggled on shore, fetches a good price.

"Spanish produce—Copper, per hundred 16 dols. 25 cents; tallow, 10; ox hides, 7 50; horse hides, each, 85 cents; jesuit's bark, per lb. 1 25."

THE TYROLESE.

[The following particulars of Lefebvre's expedition against the Tyrol, in August last, have been transmitted to us by a correspondent, to whom they were communicated by a Saxon major, who escaped from the destruction of these terrible days.]

"We had penetrated to Inspruck without great resistance; and although much was every where talked of the Tyrolese stationed upon and round the Brenner, we gave little credit to it, thinking the rebels to have been dispersed by a short cannonade, and already considering ourselves as conquerors. Our entrance into the passes of the Brenner was only opposed by small corps, which continued falling back, after an opposite though short resistance. Among others I perceived a man, full eighty years old, posted against the side of a rock, and sending death among our ranks with every shot. Upon the Bavarians descending from behind to make him prisoner, he shouted aloud, hurrah! struck the first man to the ground with a ball, seizing hold of the second, and with the ejaculation, in God's name! precipated himself with him into the abyss below.

"Marching onwards, we heard resound from the summit of a high rock: Steven! shall I chop it off yet! to which a loud nay! reverberated from the opposite side. This was told to the duke of Dantzic, who notwithstanding, ordered us to advance; at the same time he prudently withdrew from the centre to the rear. The van, consisting of 4000 Bavarians, had just stormed a deep ravine, when we again heard hallo'd over our heads: Hans! for the most holy Trinity! Our terror was complete by the reply that immediately followed:—In the name of the Holy Trinity! Cut all loose above! and ere a minute had elapsed were thousands of my comrades in arms, crushed, buried, and overwhelmed, by an incredible heap of broken rocks, stones & trees, hurled down upon us. All of us were petrified. Every one fled that could: but a shower of balls from the Tyroles, who now rushed from the surrounding mountains, in immense numbers and among them boys and girls of ten and twelve years of age, killed or wounded a great many of us. It was not till we had got these fatal mountains six leagues behind us, that we were reassembled by the duke, and formed into six columns. Soon after the Tyrolese appeared, headed by Hofer, the inn-keeper. After a short address from him, they gave a general fire, flung their rifles aside, and rushed upon our bayonets with only their clenched fists. Nothing could withstand their impetuosity. They darted at our feet, threw or pulled us down, strangled us, wrenched the arms from our hands; and, like enraged lyons, killed all—French, Bavarians, and Saxons, that did not cry for quarter. By doing so, I, with 300 men, was spared, and set at liberty.

"When all lay dead around, and the victory was completed, the Tyrolese, as if moved by one impulse, fell upon their knees, and poured forth the emotions of their hearts in prayer, under the canopy of heaven, a scene so awfully solemn, that it will ever be present to my remembrance. I joined in the devotion, and never in my life did I pray more fervent."

Potomac Land for Sale.

WISHING to remove to the upper country, I offer for sale, the FARM, on which I live, in the county of King George, lying on the Potomac River and Rosier's Creek, and containing about 700 acres; about 300 of which are cleared, and the larger portion of it of the first description of Potomac low grounds; the residue of the tract is about equally divided between oak and cedar, the latter peculiarly valuable for all the purposes of enclosing. The improvements on this property are complete, consisting of a two story dwelling house, 60 by 30 feet containing seven rooms, with passages and excellent cellars; another two story dwelling house, containing three rooms and a cellar; a new meat house, dairy, ice house, stables, corn houses, and every kind of necessary enclosure. To this property is annexed a new and most valuable overshot mill, with two pair stones, bolting cloth, cob-machine, cotton do &c. For Sale,

The following VALUABLE PROPERTY.

A TRACT OF LAND,

CONTAINING 1600 acres, more or less, called and known by the name of Bullskloe Marsh, lying within 12 miles of Winchester, in the county of Frederick, in the state of Virginia. On about 900 acres of this tract there are several very well improved farms tenanted for life or lives, the balance free of all incumbrance, including an excellent merchant mill built with stone, the whole yielding an annual rent of about 800 dollars. Much of this tract is very fertile, well watered, and all abundance of timber. It is generally rolling, but part of it is hilly and stoney, chiefly of lime stone. It will be laid off to suit purchasers.

Another tract, called Hollis's Marsh, lying in the county of Westmoreland containg about 2800 acres, bordering on the river Potomac, adjoining the Stratford estate, and the late residence of Richard Lee, esq. of Chantilly. On the estate are a number of farms and tenants at will. Part of this land is extremely fertile, and all of it as good as the lands generally are in that part of the country. The Marsh affords excellent range for stock, and is happily situated for fish and fowls of which that river abounds, and must be a desirable estate to any person who may choose to reside in that part of the country.—It will however be laid off to suit purchasers.

The above lands are held by deeds of purchase duly recorded in the general court,

Another tract containing 992 acres, lying in the county of Berkeley, adjoining the residence of Rawleigh Colston, esq. of which about 660 acres is leased for the balance of the life of an aged man, the rest tenanted at will. This land is situate in what is called the big bend of Potomac, and borders on it. In point of fertility it is esteemed inferior to none in that part of the state and is held by deed from James Marshall, esq.

Seven other tracts containing 1000 acres each, adjoining each other in the county of Mason, within a few miles of the Ohio, between the two Kanhawa's on the waters of Sandy Creek, which runs through a considerable part of it. It adjoins the lands of general Washington, and the late Benjamin Harrison, jun. esq. A large portion of it is rich bottom and the upland of very good quality. It is held under the original patentee by deeds duly recorded in the general court.

Five full & complete Shares in the Dismal Swamp Company.

Upwards of 16,000 acres of Lands, being very old military rights, lying in the states of Ohio, Kentucky and the Indiana territory, chiefly patented in my own name and ready to be shewn.

A more particular description of the foregoing property may be seen by applying to Mr. Thomas Taylor, of Richmond, who is authorized to make contracts, or to myself in Alexandria. The titles are all undoubted and the terms proposed are, one fourth in cash at the time of conveyance, the balance in three instalments, the last two to be on interest from the date. Any species of the public stock and of the different Banks in the United States of Insurance Companies—of the Potomac Bridge and Turnpike Companies will be received in payment according to their fair value. Ground rents in the city of Richmond and town of Alexandria, or Houses and Lots, will likewise be received in payment according to such rates as may be agreed upon.
